GENEVA HEALTH FORUM

6TH EDITION

APRIL 19-21 2016

@Genevaforum
Dear friends,

We are delighted to welcome you in Geneva, in the heart of Europe, a cosmopolitan and health expert city. The charming Lake of Geneva region is also known as the Swiss Health Valley, with an important activity in research and development in the field of life sciences.

The Geneva Health Forum is proud to celebrate its 10th anniversary. The overarching topic of this year’s edition will be Sustainable and Affordable Innovations in Healthcare. For the 2016 edition, you will find a very rich and high quality program with contributions of many high level experts.

Faithful to its open-minded and federating spirit, the GHF offers a unique opportunity for dialogue between field practice, professionals from academic backgrounds, from the public and private sector and from international and also non-governmental organisations. The complexity of global health challenges requires an integrative and multi-sector approach: the development of sustainable, affordable and practical solutions, whether they are pharmaceutical, biotechnological, genomics-related, IT-related or non-technological, will enhance the access to quality health care worldwide.

The GHF tenth anniversary comes along with an innovative concept:

For the very first time, it’s our great pleasure to host the World Health Summit Regional Meeting in Geneva. This very promising partnership is the result of a longstanding friendship between the members of an important international network in the field of global health. Where global health issues are at stake, with the aim of making recommendations on public policies, it is essential for the organiser of the GHF and our friends of the WHS to unify our skills and expertise in order to develop a strong common voice on global health issues.

Part of the new GHF concept is the creation of Tomorrow’s affordable hospital, a special marketplace where we will display sustainable and affordable innovations in different health sectors in an interactive manner. Come and visit this “hands-on” special exhibition, where you will discover demonstrations of innovations that you might implement in your home country.

Health and innovation are universal issues; this is why the GHF wants to share a selection of innovations with a broad public on the occasion of a public conference which will take place on April 20 at 6pm, during the tenth anniversary celebration.

The GHF is a major event created by the Geneva University Hospitals and the University of Geneva. We would like to thank all our strategic partners, as well as the local, national and international public and private institutions and organisations for their great support, contributions and sponsorship. Our thanks go also to you, our participants, who help us to shape tomorrow’s global health development agenda.

We wish you an exciting Geneva meeting.

The symposium is organized by the Swiss Meeting for Infectious Disease Dynamics (SMIDDY). SMIDDY is an annual one-day meeting focused on mathematical, computational and statistical modeling of infectious diseases. Topics include within-host and between-host dynamics of infectious diseases in both humans and animals. The aim of the meeting is to bring together researchers from different fields from Switzerland and abroad, ranging from fundamental research to public health policy making. Please visit our website for further information on SMIDDY: www.smiddy.ch

Chair: Christian L. Althaus, Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), University of Bern, Bern, Switzerland

11:00 Fabienne Krauer, Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), University of Bern, Bern, Switzerland: “Zika virus as a cause of neurologic disorders”. Fabienne is a research assistant at the Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), University of Bern, Switzerland. Her current research projects include a cost-effectiveness analysis of a chlamydia rapid test as well as a systematic review of the Zika epidemic. She obtained an M.Sc. in Biomedical Sciences at University of Bern (Switzerland) and an M.Sc. in Epidemiology at London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine LSHTM (UK). Her research interests lie in vector-borne and zoonotic infectious diseases and spatiotemporal modeling of epidemics.

11:25 Flavio Finger, Laboratory of Ecohydrology, Institute of Environmental Engineering, École Polytechnique Fédérale de Lausanne (EPFL), Lausanne, Switzerland: “Modeling the spread of cholera using human mobility estimates derived from mobile phone records”. Flavio is an environmental engineer and Ph.D. student at the Laboratory of Ecohydrology at EPFL, where he studies the mechanisms that lead to the spatial spread of infectious diseases. The main focus of his research is the development of epidemiological models that improve our understanding of cholera outbreaks and their main drivers.

11:50 Tapiwa Ganyani, Center for Statistics, Hasselt University, Hasselt, Belgium: “A stochastic SIR model with non-linear mass action”. Tapiwa is a statistical consultant and second year Ph.D. student at Hasselt University, Belgium. He works in the area of Infectious Disease Modeling, and his main research area is the development and application of stochastic epidemic models.

12:15 Dr. Christian L. Althaus, Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), University of Bern, Bern, Switzerland: “Potential impact of sexual transmission of Ebola virus on the epidemic in West Africa”. Christian is head of the Immuno-Epidemiology research group at the Institute of Social and Preventive Medicine (ISPM), University of Bern, Switzerland. He graduated from Biology at ETH Zurich, Switzerland, and obtained a Ph.D. in Theoretical Biology at Utrecht University, The Netherlands. His research group uses mathematical modeling and data analysis to understand the impact of control measures on the transmission dynamics of infectious diseases. His particular interests lie in the dynamics of viruses within and between hosts, emerging infectious diseases and antibiotic resistance.
