

Ali Jafarian M.D.

Dr. Ali Jafarian born in 1968 in Tehran-Iran, did his elementary school in Alavi institute, entered Medical school of Tehran University of Medical Sciences (TUMS) in 1985 and graduated in 1992. He did his residency of General Surgery in Imam Khomeini Hospital Complex-TUMS from 1994 to 1998. He started his job as faculty member of TUMS in department of General Surgery from 1999 after one year of service in a peripheral province.

Ali Jafarian was awarded the certificate of Vascular Surgery in 2006 and focused on Hepatopancreatobiliary Surgery and Liver Transplantation from that time afterwards. He passed several short courses on Medical Education in TUMS and University of Dundee and did his sabbatical leave on Liver Transplantation and Hepatopancreatobiliary Surgery in Cleveland Clinic and Mayo Clinic, USA, in 2011. He is the Founding director of the Liver Transplantation program since 2002 and the head of the division of hepatopancreatobiliary and Liver Transplantation in Imam Khomeini Hospital Complex, TUMS, since 2008. He has also double affiliation in department of Medical Ethics since 2002 and department of Medical Education since 2013.

Dr. Jafarian was program director of general surgery clerkship and residency in years 2000-2005 and member of national Residency Entrance Examinations boards from 2000 to 2009. He worked with Iranian Graduate Medical Council from 2006 to 2012 as a member or associate. He is also appointed as a member of national board of General Surgery since 2015. He is associate member of Iranian Academy of Medical Sciences from 2013.

From administrative viewpoint, he was executive advisor for Chancellor of TUMS in 2005-2008, Dean of Medical School in 2008-2009 and Vice Chancellor in 2009-2011. Dr. Ali Jafarian was appointed as the Chancellor of Tehran University of Medical Sciences in September 2013 for a term of 4 years to September 2017; in which 13000 students, 1700 faculty members and 15000 employees are working in 11 schools, 16 teaching hospitals with 4100 beds and 3 health care networks covering 2.8 million population of south Tehran. At the same time, he was also a member of Supreme council for Science, Research and Technology and National Council of Evaluation of State Education. He has participated in several WHO meetings as an expert especially in the fields of leadership, education and human resources for health. TUMS membership in M8 Alliance is one the international achievements during his term.

After finishing his term as chancellor, Ali Jafarian is now a member of Board of Trustees of TUMS, Advisor to Minister of Health and his representative in Iranian Graduate Medical Council.

Ali Jafarian M.D. has contributed in more 70 published papers and 5 books mainly focused on three themes: Hepatobiliary surgery and liver transplantation, Medical Ethics and Medical Education. He is a member International Liver Transplant Society (ILTS), Middle East Society of Organ Transplantation (MESOT) and Iranian Society of Organ Transplantation (IRSOT).